RETIREES FROM BUSINESS

More than 100 of the men who deal in good things to eat gathered last Thursday night in Young's hotel, Boston, to say farewell to Richard H. Sturtevant of the firm of Sturtevant & Hale, who is retiring from active business.

The occasion was made the opportunity to present Mr. Sturtevant with a graceful speech expressed to Mr. Sturtevant the regard in which he has been held for 40 years by his business associates and presented him with the clock as a token of their regard.

The old gentleman was overcome by his emotion and could only express his thanks in the briefest possible form.

Major Gline of Somerville, where Mr. Sturtevant lives, added a heartfelt tribute to the man who had been his life long friend. Pres. William Craig of the Boston fruit and produce exchange spoke briefly and feelingly; S. Everett Hyde, a fellow director of Mr. Sturtevant's in the Fourth national bank, added his need of praise, and the last speaker was Walter S. Glidden, who is Mr. Sturtevant's successor in the business.

Mr. Sturtevant has many friends in Meredith. For years he spent the summer months here, but some time ago he sold his beautiful place, "Sunny Slope," to Mr. Hollingsworth.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

B. Blaisdell, the Democratic candidate for the Legislature, is quite active in his canvass for votes. It is quite noticeable, also, that a number of prominent Democratic workers who exhibited considerable apathy during the last campaign have taken their coats off.

The Boston Globe: "New Hampshire's Democratic candidate for governor declares that on the temperance question he is ready to stand with Bishop Potter of New York, Rev. Mr. Lockhart of Manchester and the Catholic bishop of Vermont. If a man is known by the company he keeps, Mr. Hollis can't be so wicked as the Boston Globe would paint him." Mr. Hollis certainly keeps gilt-edged company along with Alonso Elliott of Manchester, who is in the same class. Neither of these gentlemen will be found peddling beer checks on election day. Not a bit of it. That sort of business is reserved for the straddlers who think that their plow-form of "Put" and putt will attract voters from all parties.

The election campaign is fairly under way in Meredith, and the press in town almost daily of leading Republican workers tends to show that the g.o.p. means business. It is quite apparent that Messrs. Edmund Quimby, Joseph F. Smith, W. D. Veasey and Elmer Tilton have pooled issues and are making a bitter fight to elect their ticket. It is not a case this year of each man for himself and a fear of the devil catching the hindmost. On the contrary, it looks as if they realize that in union there is strength, and that they will act accordingly. Two years ago the Republican candidate for the Legislature received a majority of 139 votes, Veasey beat his opponent in Meredith by 82 votes, and the successful state senator had 10,000 votes. The Republicans did this year can hold the voters together as well as did two years ago, their present hard work will not be vain. One thing is certain, they are all confident of success. But they do not appear to be over-confident. At least the amount of work they are putting in does not lead to that supposition. Mr. Quimby, especially, is anxious to represent Meredith in the next Legislature. He has been laying his plans to do so for two years, and if he beaten his defeat cannot be laid to lack of work and enthusiasm on his part or that of his friends.

When a Democrat says the Republican party is responsible for the coal strike, ask him how it happens that the men who are doing their best to settle the strike are Republicans, while those who are trying so hard to prevent an adjustment are the radicals and trust magnates who hate President Roosevelt.—Portsmouth Journal.

But suppose the Democrat then asserts that the laws enacted by Republicans give Democrats and Republican magnates a golden opportunity to oppress the people, what would you answer them? Some of those pesky Democrats are mighty sharp when they get into an argumentative mood.

The oft-repeated assertion that the Republican party is sincere in its attitude as regards its prohibition plank was exemplified in a striking manner last Friday in Manchester at the Mayoralty caucus. Read what the Manchester Union has to say about the matter, ponder over the hypocrisy of some of the party's straddling leaders who are fishing for prohibition and license votes, and then vote for your conscience dictated on the 4th of November.

It was a most remarkable caucus in many ways. The feature which impressed the most strongly was the four-handed distribution of beer checks by the men peddling beer in the hall and corridors. Such a proceeding has never before been seen at a political gathering here with ballot boxes along with the information as to where they could be exchanged for the stuff.

The distributors received them in lots of 100 and more above, with the packages loaded down with pasteboards. There were two kinds of checks. One green check was marked with simply the figure "3" beneath a double-line. This was his mark of the information that it was determined at the National cloth, a place in Nutfield Lane, north of Hanover street, more familiarly known to the oldtimers as Ad Hatch's.

The other check was blue. On it was the figure "5," and the name of "Kenney & Horn." This was given with the instruction that it could be used to "Own a Kenney Junior, a place formerly known as 'Hard's Cafe,'" located on Manchester street not far from Elm street.

The demand for souvenirs was heavy, and when a beer was served before entering their home, in their pockets to lay them away as mementos of this caucus. They were displayed in all quarters of the city last night and laid away carefully as though they were Spanish duchies from the kit of Captain Kidd.

Alonso Elliott, independent Republican candidate for governor, does not believe in such methods. He believes that the party should be honest in the handling of the liquor traffic and his platform states: "I believe in high license and local option."

Members of the next Legislature are having more work cut out for them. Editor Cheney of the Lebanon Free Press urges that only protectionists should be elected as members of the New Hampshire Legislature this fall. When it is borne in mind that the Legislature of this state has about as much to do with the National tariff as has with the question of what make of corsets African belles should buy, the negroes of the world are bound to wonder what our negroes driving at?"

Martin B. Plummer of Laconia and Fred a Plummer of Boston were guests of Amber Connor Monday.

Mr. Edw. M. Evans and Miss Dorothy of Holderness and Mrs. Lillian Murray Spaulding of Plymouth, visited friends here a portion of last week.

Richard E. Hopkins has been on the sick list for the last week.

Mr. and Frank A. Shaw of Hill have been stopped for a few days past.

Dr. J. F. Burdick preached at the Mission Sunday, Oct. 19, taking for his subject the first half of Matthew 8. Although his talks are always plain, practical, pointed and pithy his sermon of last Sunday was pronounced the best ever delivered.

Beknap District Lodge No. 4 of Good Templars desires to assist in building up White Mountain Lodge, No. 83, the coming winter, and have therefore appointed a committee who will visit us for that purpose next Monday evening, Oct. 27.

Members from Laconia and Meredith will be present and furnish music, readings and recitations. It is earnestly requested that all members of White Mountain Lodge be present, also that all who have ever been members and all who would like to join our noble order be there next Monday evening. Everybody invited and everybody welcome at the Free Baptist vestry Monday evening Oct. 27.

Mrs. C. Jessie Clark and children of Plymouth recently visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel S. Corliss.
